

USMCA Review Is an Opportunity to Strengthen North America's Competitive Edge

As the United States, Canada, and Mexico hold the first joint review of the United States-Mexico-Canada Agreement (USMCA), the Coalition for North American Trade (CNAT) reaffirms its strong support for strengthening, preserving, and extending this landmark agreement.

CNAT supports a constructive review process that preserves USMCA's core benefits, reinforces certainty, and strengthens North American competitiveness. CNAT and its members stand ready to work with policymakers in all three countries to support a successful joint review and a stronger, more competitive North America.

USMCA supports one of the world's largest and most integrated economic regions, connecting nearly 500 million consumers and enabling close to $2 trillion in annual trade across North America. The agreement supports jobs, strengthens supply chains, expands market access, and gives businesses the certainty they need to invest, grow, and compete.

CNAT is encouraged that negotiators are engaging through the joint review process and related discussions. Continued dialogue among the Parties is essential to resolving issues constructively and ensuring the agreement continues to deliver for workers, businesses, consumers, and communities across North America.

At a time of intensifying global competition, USMCA is a strategic asset. It allows the United States, Canada, and Mexico to compete as an integrated North American market and strengthens the region's ability to lead in manufacturing, agriculture, services, energy, technology, and innovation.

CNAT is a cross-sector coalition of businesses and trade associations that support preserving the profound economic and security benefits of USMCA.
